

Title: Applications of Artificial Intelligence in Drug Discovery

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is transforming the pharmaceutical sector by accelerating drug discovery. Techniques such as machine learning help in identifying promising drug candidates by analyzing large chemical databases. Deep learning models can predict molecular interactions and drug-target affinities. AI also contributes to patient stratification in clinical trials and drug repurposing efforts.